

KEEP 'EM CLEAN

Taking the time to periodically clean your Justin boots adds years to their life, and contrary to popular belief, the steps involved are simple enough for anyone to perform.

STEP 1: After Every Use, Wipe Them Off.

You can use an old towel, a damp rag or even your socks. The important thing is to make sure you remove the dust and dirt that may have accumulated during the day. Dust and dirt particles are leather's biggest enemies. They work into the folds eventually causing abrasions and cracking.

STEP 2: Allow The Boots 24 Hours To Dry Out Before Wearing Them Again.

Moisture from your feet settles in the boot, and without time to dry, bacteria stains and general decay will start to form in the leather. A good practice is to rotate your boots, never wearing the same pair two days in a row. (Never dry your boots with heat; it causes the leather to dry out.)

STEP 3: Periodically Clean, Polish And Condition Your Boots.

Leather, like your skin, dries out. By conditioning your boots, you lubricate the fibers and add to their life.

Other ways you can add years to the life of your boots, while retaining their original good looks, are to use boot trees, use an eraser to remove scuff marks, and clean the welt and seams with an old toothbrush. Remember that some leathers like Python, Alligator, Lizard, Calf and Goat dry out more easily and are subject to cracking without frequent conditioning. See the following guide for correct cleaning applications and always make sure to read labels of boot care products before using them.

STEP 4: Let Boots Dry Naturally

From time to time, your boots may get wet due to rain or other accidents. When this happens, please let the boots air dry naturally. Do not set boots on or near a heat source. Rapid drying can cause excessive cracking due to over drying.
